Big Data Performance Report - insideBIGDATA

Some big data vendors have made early attempts at performance benchmarks, but they are either woefully incomplete or misleading. Why is big data benchmarking so problematic? The closest we've come to a common workload definition is TPC-DS, which benchmarks SQL decision support and can be targeted at Hadoop.

HiBench is designed to stress-test Hadoop clusters while measuring speed and performance. For our benchmarking we ran tests using Enhanced DFSIO, Teragen, and Terasort. We found that the Big Data jobs ran as fast (or even slightly faster) on the EPIC platform than on bare-metal for some of these micro-benchmarks.
