Case Formulation In Cognitive Behaviour

A case formulation is a hypothesis about the psychological mechanisms that cause and maintain an individual's symptoms and problems (Kuyken et al., 2009; Persons, 2008). It's a principle-driven approach that targets mechanisms grounded in basic psychological theories—such as cognitive theory, classical and operant conditioning.

Abstract: This article describes a case formulation-driven approach to cognitive-behavior therapy (CBT) that draws on the formulations and interventions in the ESTs while helping the therapist make many of the clinical decisions that are not directly addressed in the ESTs. We begin the article with an overview of case formulation-driven CBT. Then we describe each of the steps of case formulation-driven CBT, giving special attention to the step of developing a case formulation.
