To Be Just Is To

In a way, the “To be” verb doesn't do much for you — it just sits there — and text that is too heavily sprinkled with “To be” verbs can feel sodden, static. This is especially true of “To be” verbs tucked into dependent clauses (particularly dependent clauses using a passive construction) and

The Verb 'To Be'

God remains just; He is not violating His own code of justice by pardoning those who deserve its consequences.

Salvation IS a just consequence because God has pronounced Jesus' death and resurrection sufficient to satisfy His wrath.
